

St. Tammany Parish will be the home to a revolutionary new University Square off of Highway 434 north of Lacombe. This center will be a combined campus of Southeastern Louisiana University, University of New Orleans, Delgado Community College, including a technical and trade school area, and the St. Tammany Parish School Board.

“By putting these great institutions together, we can help reduce costs and expand opportunities for north shore students,” said Parish President Kevin Davis. “The parish will bond the construction costs and the universities will enter into a financial agreement with us to cover the cost of the bonds.”
